We are very excited that you have chosen to apply to the UCSC Doris Duke Conservation Scholars Program, and we are eager to learn more about you. We wish you the best of luck during the application process. There are several parts to this application:

1. Information about you, including contact information, description of your recent jobs, activities, awards, information about your recommender(s), and your answers to three essay questions. Required questions are marked with an asterisk (*). We will also ask you for optional demographic information about yourself. Your choice to not provide us with this information will not influence your likelihood of being selected to participate in the program.

2. Copies of your college transcripts. Unofficial copies are fine, and they are typically easier for you to obtain. Please submit all of your college transcripts, even if you have earned credit at more than one institution.

3. A letter of recommendation. You’ll need at least one (1) recommendation letter. Please complete the information on the application about who is providing your letter. We suggest that you contact -- in person or by email -- someone you have worked closely with who is familiar with some of the experiences that you have described in your essays. Ideally, your recommender is a current or former coach, employer, professor, supervisor, or other academic or professional mentor willing to provide you with a detailed letter. Letters from family and relatives will not be accepted. Please share information about the program with your recommender (such as the website and your essays), and ask your recommender to describe how (s)he knows you, how long (s)he has known you, your suitability for this program, and your potential to make a significant contribution to the field of conservation. Letters of recommendation should include the recommender’s name, title, address, and email, and a link will be provided to request letters of recommendation that will be added to your file.

Deadlines: This online application, transcript(s), and letter(s) of recommendation are due by 11:59pm PST February 8, 2019.

Editing your application: You will be asked to open an account with Submittable to access the application. This account will allow you freely edit your application. However, for purposes of editing and receiving feedback we highly recommend that you download the application template document from the program website (conservationscholars.ucsc.edu) and draft your long answer questions ahead of time in a separate document. You can then copy and paste the information directly into the online application form and submit your full application all at once. Please email Dr. Justin Cummings (jacummin@ucsc.edu) if you have any questions at all about the application, the selection process, or the program. Thank you for applying!
